Final Dash For the Pole. The "Big Nail" Reached at Last and "Old Glory" Unfurled — Endless Fields of Purple Snows — No North, No East, No West -o- -o-

THE observations of April 14 gave latitude 88 degrees 21 minutes, longitude 95 degrees 52 minutes.

We were but 100 miles from the pole, but there was nothing to relieve the mental strain of the icy despair. The wind came with the same satanic cut from the west. There had been little drift, but the ice before us displayed signs of recent activity. It was more irregular, with an open crack here and there, but the sleds glided with less friction, and the dreary dogs maintained a better speed under rising tails.

With teeth set and newly sharpened resolutions, we set out for that last 100 miles. Some dogs had gone into the stomachs of their hungry companions, but there still remained a sufficient pull of well tried brute force for each sled, and, though their noisy vigor had been lost in the long drag, they still broke the frigid silence with an occasional outburst. A little fresh enthusiasm from the drivers was quickly followed by canine activity.

We were in good trim to cover distance economically. The sledges were light; our bodies were thin. All the muscles had shriveled, but the dogs retained much of their strength. Thus stripped for the last lap, one horizon after another was lifted.

In the forced effort which followed we were frequently overheated. The temperature was steady at 44 degrees below zero F., but perspiration came with ease and a certain amount of pleasure. Later, however, there followed a train of suffering for many days. The delight of the birdskin shirt was changed for the chill of the wet blanket.

Fortunately, at this time the sun was warm enough to dry the furs in about three days if lashed to the sunny side of the sled. In these last days we felt more keenly the pangs of perspiration than in all our earlier adventures.

The amber colored goggles were persistently used, and they afforded a protection to the eyes which was quite a revelation, but in spite of every precaution our distorted, frozen, burned and withered faces lined a map of the hardships en route.

We were curious looking savages. The perpetual glitter induced a squint which distorted the face in a remarkable manner. The strong light reflected from the crystal surface threw the muscles about the eye into a state of chronic contraction. The pupil was reduced to a mere pinhole.

There was no end of trouble at hand in endeavoring to keep the windows of the soul open, and all of the effect was run together in a set expression of hardship and wrinkles which should be called the boreal squint.

This boreal squint is a part of the russet bronze physiognomy which falls to the lot of every arctic explorer. The early winds, with a piercing temperature, start a flush of scarlet, while frequent frostbites leave figures in black. Later the burning sun browns the skin; subsequently strong winds sop the moisture, harden the skin and leave open fissures.

The hard work and reduced nourishment contract the muscles, dispel the fat and leave the skin to shrivel up in folds. The imprint of the goggles, the set expression of hard lines and the mental blank of the environment have removed all spiritual animation. We have the color and the lines of old russet apples and would easily pass for prehistoric progenitors of man.

In the enforced effort to spread out the stiffened legs over the last reaches there was no longer sufficient energy at camping times to erect a snow shelter. The silk tent was pressed into use. Though the temperature was very low when the sun was high, its congenial rays pierced the silk fabric and rested softly on our brows closed in heavy slumber. In strong winds it was still necessary to erect a sheltering wall to shield the tent.

Signs of land were still seen every day, but they were deceptive optical illusions and a mere verdict of fancy. It seemed that something must happen, some line must cross our horizon, to mark the important area into which we were pressing.

When the sun was low the eye ran over moving plains in brilliant waves of color to dancing horizons. The mirages turned things topsy turvy. Inverted lands and queer objects ever rose and fell in shrouds of mystery, but all of this was due to the atmospheric magic of the midnight sun.

With a lucky series of daily astronomical observations our position was now accurately fixed for each stage of progress. As we neared the pole the imagination quickened, and a restless, almost hysteric excitement came over us. The boys fancied they saw beaver and seals, and I had a new land under observation frequently, but with a change in the direction of light or an altered trend in our temperament the horizon cleared and we became eager only to push farther into the mystery.

From the eighty-eighth to the eighty-ninth the ice was in very large fields and the surface was less irregular, but in other respects it was about the same as below the eighty-seventh. We noticed here also an extension of the range of vision. We seemed to see longer distances and the ice along the horizon had a less angular outline.

The color of the sky and the ice also changed to deeper purple blues. We had no way of checking these impressions by other observations. The eagerness to find something unusual may have fired the imagination, but since the earth is flattened at the pole perhaps a widened horizon should be detected.

At 8 o'clock on the morning of April 19 we camped on a picturesque old field with convenient hummocks, to which we could easily rise for the frequent outlook which we now maintained. The tent was pitched. The dogs were silenced by blocks of pemmican. In us new enthusiasm was aroused by a liberal pot of pea soup and a few chips of frozen meat, and then we bathed in life giving sunbeams, screened from the piercing air by silk strands. It was a beautiful day, and had our sense of appreciation not been blunted by accumulated fatigue we would have greatly enjoyed the play of light and color in the ever changing scene of sparkle.

The Eskimos were soon lost in a profound sleep, the only comfort in their hard lives, but I remained awake, as had been my habit on succeeding days, to get nautical observations. The longitude calculations lined us at 91 degrees 3 minutes. At noon the sun's altitude was carefully set on the sextant, and the latitude quickly reduced gave 89 degrees 31 minutes—twenty-nine miles from the pole.

My heart jumped for joy, and the unconscious commotion which I was creating awakened Etukishuk. I told him that in two average marches we would reach the "tigi shu" (the big nail).

Ahwelah was awakened with a kick, and together they went out to a hummock and through glasses sought for a mark to locate so important a place as the terrestrial axis. If but one sleep beyond it must be seen.

I tried to explain that the pole was not visible to the eye; that its position was located only by a repeated use of the various instruments. This entirely satisfied their curiosity, and they burst out in hurrahs of joy. For two hours they chanted and danced the passions of wild life.

It was the first real sign of pleasure or rational emotion which they had shown for several weeks. For some time I had entertained the fear that we no longer possessed the strength to return to land, but the unbridled flow of vigor dispelled that idea.

More sleep was quite impossible. We brewed an extra pot of tea, prepared a favorite broth of pemmican, dug up a surprise of fancy biscuits and filled up on good things to the limit of the allowance for our final feast days. The dogs, which had joined the chorus of gladness, were given an extra lump of pemmican. A few hours more were agreeably spent in the tent, and then we started with a new spirit for the uttermost north.

We were excited to a fever heat. The feet were light on this run. Even the dogs caught the infectious enthusiasm and rushed along at a pace which made it difficult for me to keep a sufficient advance to set a good course. The horizon was still searched for something to mark the approaching boreal center, but nothing unusual was seen. It was the same expanse of moving seas of ice on which we had lived for 500 miles.

But, looking through gladdened eyes, the scene assumed a new glory. There were plains of gold fenced in purple walls, with gilded crests. It was one of the few days on the stormy pack when all nature smiled with cheering lights.

As the day advanced and the splendor of summer night was run into the continued day the beams of gold on the surface snows thickened, while the shadows of hummocks and ridges spread a line of violet barriers through which a way must be sought.

From my position a few hundred yards ahead of the sleds I could not resist the temptation to turn frequently to see the movement of the dog train with its new fire. In this direction the color scheme was reversed. The icy walls were in gold and burning colors, while the plains represented every shade of purple and blue.

Through this sea of color the dogs came with a spirited tread, noses down, tails up and shoulders braced to the straps like chariot horses. The young Eskimos, chanting songs of love, came with easy step. The long whip was swung with a brisk crack, and all over there rose a cloud of frosted breath.

Camp was pitched early in the morning of April 20. The sun was northeast; the pack glowed in tones of lilac; the normal westerly air of shivers brushed our frosty faces. The surprising burst of enthusiasm had been nursed to its limit, and under it a long march was made over average ice with the usual result of overbearing fatigue. Too tired and sleepy to wait for a cup of tea, melted snows were poured down, and the pemmican was pounded with the ax to ease the task of the jaws. The eyes closed before the meal was finished, and the world was lost to us for eight hours. The observation gave latitude 89 degrees 46.5 minutes, longitude 94 degrees 52 minutes.

With the boys singing and the dogs howling we started off after midnight on April 21. The dogs looked large and noble as they came along that day, while Etukishuk and Ahwelah, though thin and ragged, had a dignity as heroes of the greatest human battle which had ever been fought with remarkable success.

We were all lifted to the paradise of winners as we stepped over the snows of a destiny for which we had risked life and willingly suffered the tortures of an icy hell.

The ice under us seemed almost sacred. When the pedometer registered fourteen and a half miles we camped and calmly went to sleep, feeling that we were turning on the earth's axis.

The observations, however, gave 89 degrees 59 minutes 45 seconds. We therefore had the pole, or the exact spot where it should be, within sight.

We advanced the fifteen seconds, made supplementary observations, pitched the tent, built a snow igloo and prepared to make ourselves comfortable for a stay long enough for two rounds of observations.

Our position was thus doubly assured, and a necessary day of rest was gained. Etukishuk and Ahwelah enjoyed the day in quiet repose, but I slept very little. My goal was reached; the ambition of my life had been fulfilled. How could I sleep away such overwhelming moments of elation?

At last we had reached the boreal center. The dream of nations had been realized. The race of centuries was ours. The flag was pinned to the coveted pole. The year was 1908, the day April 21.

The sun indicated local noon, but time was a negative problem, for here all meridians meet. With a step it was possible to go from one part of the globe to the opposite side—from the hour of midnight to that of midday. Here there are but one day and one night in each year. The latitude was 90 degrees, the temperature —38.7, the atmospheric pressure 29.83. North, east and west had vanished. It was south in every direction, but the compass, pointing to the magnetic pole, was as useful as ever.

Though overjoyed with the success of the conquest our spirits began to change on the next day after all the observations had been taken and the local conditions were studied. A sense of intense loneliness came with a careful scrutiny of the horizon. What a cheerless spot to have aroused the ambition of man for so many ages! Endless fields of purple snows! No life, no land, no spot, to relieve the monotony of frost! We were the only pulsating creatures in a dead world of ice.

On April 23, 1908, Dr. Cook began the long return march. With fair weather, good ice and the inspiration of the home run long distances were at first quickly covered.

With a good deal of anxiety Cook watched the daily reduction of the food supply. It now became evident that the crucial stage of the campaign was to be transferred from the taking of the pole to a final battle for life against famine and frost. Early in July farther southward progress became impossible, and in quest of food he crossed the Firth of Devon into Jones sound. On Feb. 18, 1909, the start was made for Annootok. With a newly prepared equipment the Greenland shores were reached on April 15. Here Dr. Cook was greeted by Harry Whitney and anxious Eskimo friends. To facilitate an early return he moved southward to the Danish settlement and reached Upernavik on May 24, 1909. The Danish ship Hans Egede took him from Upernavik to Denmark.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1909

Next week we will offer to the public the first of a series of cartoons in this paper. The cartoons are drawn by a local artist and the cuts are made in this office. Our cartoonist will deal with the popular local subjects of the day, the first picture referring to the need of a sewer system. This adds another feather in our cap as up to date printers. We believe the EXPOSITOR is the first paper in the county to do its own engraving.

On the first page appears the second and last installment of Dr. Cook's own story of his dash to the North Pole, written no doubt during or shortly after the strenious ordeal and triumphant success of the undertaking. We are sure the public appreciates the fact that the EXPOSITOR was the first paper north of San Francisco to publish the story, and we are the only publishers to present this remarkable tale in this county, having bought the county rights.

Interested in Oil Reports

Inquiries are being made regarding the recent indications of oil discovered in this locality and within a short time we expect to furnish the public with an article written while making a tour of investigation of our prospects in this line with an expert.

This gentleman is interested in the industry and, upon hearing several favorable reports about this valley, will visit us, and as we have several points where it is believed oil can be found, will go with us and investigate. We are confident that when this tour of inspection is o'er we shall have a bomb to explode in the midst of our readers, and we will try as near as possible to give the exact location of each find.

Parties believing they have oil prospects will please give us the location of same and we will be pleased to take the expert to investigate.

The Farmers Union

Throughout the State farmers have begun to organize Farmers' Unions—a society with the purpose of protecting the farmer from the numerous commission sharks, and to bind them into a more organized body, educating them in the pursuits of their endeavors, with a social feature added, and in these societies we hope to see protection for these hard working people. In nearly all lines of business men have linked themselves together in a strong form or society and force competition the wall and the public to pay the prices they demand.

And the farmer has passed through it all—paying the prices demanded and receiving in return very low prices for his products, thus throwing the scale of balance to the wrong side and finding his profits nothing at the close of a year's labor.

Let us hope this Union will be able to remedy this defect and obtain for its members good prices and fair profits.

Still More Funds

More funds are being raised for our band in this city. M. S. Beyers now having $612 subscribed, to be paid in weekly installments for the next six months.

The residents of this valley have responded magnificiently to the call for money for this cause, and we are sure the band boys appreciate their benevolence and will do their utmost to give the subscribers their money's worth.

Mr. Beyers has been unable to see all as yet, and those desiring to swell the fund, which is as yet in adequate, can leave subscriptions at Duhring's.

Wednesday evening Instructor Bailey met the boys in Weyl hall and took them through a course of sprouts, teaching them easy pieces to start with. Last Sunday the student bandmen received instructions in the same building.

Better Phone Service

Both the Pacific States and the Northwestern Telephone and Telegraph Companies have a large force of men at work constructing new and removing old lines in this valley.

The Pacific States have a force of twelve men at work on the Napa line, taking down the old poles and setting new 45ft onas in their stead.

The Northwestern company recently purchased from the Pacific States the old Petaluma line as far as the Foster ranch and will make extensive improvements on the line.

President Ney and F. L. Wright, of Santa Rosa, accompanied by J. F. Tate and Manager Kendall, made a tour of inspection of the company's numerous lines Wednesday and decided on many improvements, to be made as rapidly as possible.

The Northwestern already has 205 subscribers and with the completion of the line to Glen Ellen, which, by the way, has been completed to the Sonoma State Home, twenty-six new subscribers will be added, with the probability of many more.

The company intends the expenditure of $3000 in new lines and improvements.

A 100-pair cable will be strung around the plaza and a 250-pair cable will be run to the office.

On Broadway, beyond the city limits, the line will be moved to the opposite side of the street.

Seven men are at work on the Glen Ellen line, and within a month the line will be complete and all subscribers connected.

Manager Kendall informs us that it keeps him busy these days installing new phones and states that within two years the company will have double the present number of subscribers.

Charles Leverone

Monday morning at 8 a. m. occured the death of Charles Leverone at his home west of El Verano.

He was a man of 56 years and 7 days of age and leaves two brothers and a score of nephews and neces to morn their loss.

The remains were brought to Bates' Undertaking Parlors, and Wednesday at 11 a. m. the remains were taken from there to the St. Francis church where the last rites were held.

The remains were interred in the Catholic cemetery.

The community at large joins the EXPOSITOR in extending condolence to those bereaved.

Bazaar and Entertainment

Mayflower Hall, Glen Ellen, will be a scene of activity, mirth and pathos and good things for the inner man on Friday and Saturday evenings, October 29 and 30. The ladies will conduct a bazaar both evenings.

Saturday evening a chicken pie dinner will be served by the ladies for which an abundance of good things has been supplied. A dish of the far famed Glen Ellen chicken pie is well worth the price of the entire dinner, 35 cents.

Steiger Co. Wins Suit

Judge Emmet Seawell on Saturday handed down an opinion in the suit of Steiger Terra Cotta Works, against the City of Sonoma and J. B. Newman. The court gives judgment for plaintiff in the sum of $833.57. The suit was to recover damages for conversion of property furnished the plaintiff to Contractor McQuiddy and appropriated by the City of Sonoma and Contractor J. B Newman, when McQuiddy ceased operations on his contract. The property consisted of Spanish roof tiles, elastic roof cement, roof nails, asphalt paper and Portland cement.

There was a slight discrepency in the quantity of roof tiles which were shipped and the number used in the structure, it being claimed that some were broken before they could be used.

In a former trial of the case, which went to the Court of Appeals for review, the value being the sole question, and the evidence sustains the view as to the value being in excess of the amount named in the findings on file from the first trial.

The court declares that Defendant Newman's answer supplies the necessity of a demand. Also that none of the alleged items of costs incurred after the first trial and offered in evidence upon second hearing should be allowed.

All objections to testimony on which rulings were reserved are overruled by the court and an exception is allowed in each instance to the aggreived party.

Liberalty never killed a town. Every public enterprise ought to receive substantial encouragement. When you give a dollar towards improving the town, you do not 'throw away your money, but simply make a good investment.

Bad luck is only a man sitting on the corner or lounging around a red-hot stove in the corner grocery store with a pipe in his mouth, and expectorating tobacco juice, looking to see how things turn out. Good luck is pluck of a man with his sleeves turned up, hustling like a Turk to make things come out all right.

Ask the Glen Ellen post master what he knows about the Portola carnival, and particularly about the parade last Saturday night. You see, he became inquisitive last Saturday and so hied himself to the scene of fun and frolic. In the course of his ambling he became unwillingly involved or gathered in by the surrounding mob. Did he mingle? Well, ask him; this is only a synopsis of his adventures: The reluctant post master was headed for the parade proper. He either jumped over the rope, or ducked under the rope, but he got there, believe me Straightway a blue coated son of Erin discovered the postmaster on his "forced march" and threw him over the ropes. When he hit terra firma, he raised his right hand and swore. What did he say? He said "Never again?" Moral:— Listen, ye stranger, get not too close to the parade.

Denies Charges

Dr. E. Z. Hennessey, one of the leading physicians of Napa county and ex-member of the Napa State Hospital board of managers, Tuesday filed in the Superior court an answer specifically denying all of the sensational allegations of malpractice made against him recently by Robert L. Agers, a rancher, in a damage suit for $25,000. Agers alleges that Hennessey treated him six months for a broken leg and so unskillfully set the fractured member that he is permanently crippled.

Coming Monday

After playing a week's engagement in San Rafael the De La Geneste-Neller Mystery Company will play in this city Monday, Nov. 1, and all those who are skeptic to hypnotism should attend.

Prof. Neller, the world's greatest magic performer of mysteries will show his marvelous feats.

Madam Neller, the famous psychic reader on the Pacific coast, will answer all questions about love, matrimony or business you may wish to ask.

Silanda, the king of electricity, will show you things you thought impossible. He handles electricity without fear, and forms an arc light of 220 volts with carbons held in bare hands.

In behalf of Madam Neller it is said she is the world's renowned psychic reader, being phrenomially endowed with the power and penetration of one's innermost thoughts, reading from memory's archives as though from an open book.

Papers throughout the country hold Neller, the prince of magicians, as a wizzard, he being able to confound the minds of scientists and philosophers, performing acts directly contrary to the law of gravitation. In his impersonation of Ching Ling Soo, the great Chinese conjuror, his work is rapid and it is impossible to detect the slightest false move or the secret of the trick.

De L. Geneste is a hypnotist of renown, being able at will to hypnotise one and all and carry them successfully and uninjured through the different stages of this science. Ample opportunity will be given all to test his powers on next Monday night.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the deceased portion of the ear There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing ane when it is entirely clored, deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

THE SECRET OUT.

To refute the many false and malicious attacks, bogus formulæ and other untruthful statements published concerning Doctor Pierce's World-famed Family Medicines, the Doctor has decided to publish all the ingredients entering into his "Favorite Prescription" for women and his equally popular tonic alterative known as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Hereafter every bottle of these medicines leaving the great Laboratory at Buffalo, N. Y., will bear upon it a full list of all the ingredients entering into the compound. Both are made entirely from native roots, of rare medicinal value. The ingredients of the "Golden Medical Discovery" being Golden Seal root, Queen's root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Mandrake root and Bloodroot. The "Favorite Prescription" is prepared in a similar manner, from Blue Cohosh root, Lady's Slipper root, Unicorn root, Golden Seal root and Rattleweed root, these ingredients being macerated for a long time at a rather high temperature in a menstruum composed of chemically pure glycerine, of proper strength. The exact working formula for making these medicines cost Dr. Pierce and his collaborating Chemists and Pharmacists many years of study and experiments, but as perfected they produce almost perfect pharmaceutical compounds, embodying all the active medicinal principles residing in the ingredients employed, and this, too, in such form and combination as to keep unchanged in any climate. Thus the use of alcohol is entirely avoided.

PROOF POSITIVE.

Without solicitation, Mrs. H. Harrison, of 112 West 2d Street, Sioux City, Iowa, wrote us as follows:

"I suffered for more than seven years with a very complicated form of female trouble accompanied with nervous prostration, and after doctoring with six physicians (all bearing excellent reputations), was informed that unless an operation was performed I would be an invalid all my life. Hearing of the wonderful cures effected by Dr. R. V. Pierce's remedies, and believing that there must be a cure for almost every ailment, I determined to make one more effort. I wrote to Dr Pierce, and I will never forget his kindly advice, telling me to follow his instructions faithfully and not to submit to an operation I commenced to improve after six weeks treatment, and in five months my improvement was so noticeable to friends that they began to inquire about my method of treatment. I was pleased to tell them of the wonderful means of cure that I had most fortunately found, and, as so many ladies applied to me for information regarding Dr. Pierce's world-famed medicines and his plans of treatment, I felt in duty bound to give them the benefit of my experience, so, told them the facts. The large number of positive cures effected by Doctor Pierce's remedies alone, used by my recommendation, seemed, in one year's time, nothing short of a miracle. I couldn't have believed it had I not seen the parties and known the facts."

Dr. Pierce's Good temper is largely a matter of good health, and good health is largely a matter of healthy activity of the bowels. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They are safe, sure and speedy, and once taken do not have to be taken always. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. They never gripe. By all druggists. Pellets.

Cold Weather

To all is to beware of coughs and colds on the chest; as neglected they readily lead to pneumonia, consumption or other pulmonary troubles. Just as soon as the cough appears treat it with Ballard's Horehound Syrup the standard cure of America. Use as directed—perfectly harmless A cure and preventive for all diseases of the lungs. Price 25c 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Fresh crabs, clams and oyster received daily at the California Oyster Market and Chop House on Broadway.

The Glowworm Cavern.

The greatest wonder of the antipodes is the celebrated glowworm cavern discovered in 1891 in the heart of the Tasmanian wilderness. The cavern or caverns (there appears to be a series of such caverns in the vicinity, each separate and distinct) are situated near the town of Southport, Tasmania, in a limestone bluff, about four miles from the bay. The appearance of the main cavern is that of an underground river the entire floor of the subterranean passage being covered with water about a foot and a half in depth. These wonderful Tasmanian caves are similar to all caverns found in limestone formation, with the exception that their roofs and sides literally shine with the light emitted by the millions of glowworms which inhabit them.

Nose Drinking In Norway.

The Norwegian papers tell of a speedy and efficacious method of becoming intoxicated prevailing in the slums of Christiania. The Orebladet describes how it is done. The drunkard fills the palm of his hand with "aquevit" (strong corn brandy) and sniffs it through his nose. A few applications do the work, while the same quantity of liquor taken into the stomach would hardly be felt. "Nose drinking" has become a real vice with some individuals. The effect of it is terrible, because the whole nervous system is paralyzed in a moment, and the drunkard remains almost unconscious for several minutes. Afterward a sleepy fatigue is felt, as after smoking opium.

Hoarseness in a child subject to croup is a sure indication of the approach of the disease. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given at once or even after the croupy cough has appeared, it will prevent the attack. Contains no poison. Sold by all druggists.

The Responsibility.

Anxious Father—Do the best you can for him, doctor. That is all I can ask. If it is the will of Providence—

Surgeon—Don't try to place the responsibility on Providence in this case, Mr. McJones. You bought the toy pistol for the boy yourself.

Never Worry

About a cough—there's no need of worry if you will treat it at it's first appearance with Ballard's Horehound Syrup. It will stop the cough at once and put your lungs and throat back into perfectly healthy condition. Sold by L. S. Simmons,

The Romance of Lisbon.

Of Lisbon itself and beautiful Cintra it is scarce necessary to write. Commander Shore in his book, "The Pleasant Springs in Portugal," says: "I believe there is only one other European capital that can compare with Lisbon in point of situation and splendor of appearances, Constantinople, and the resemblance seems to have struck other travelers besides myself. Certainly when the morning mists are clinging to the shores, partly screening their beauties and lending to the scene the charm of mystery that Turner loved, Lisbon does seem like an enchanted city." What could one say more?—London Tatler.

It is time of sudden mishap or accident that Chamberlain's Liniment can be relied upon to take place of the family doctor, who cannot always be found at the moment. Then it is that Chamberlain's Liniment is never found wanting. In cases of sprains cuts, wounds and bruises Chamberlain's Liniment takes out the soreness and drives away the pain. Sold by all druggists.

Merely Going.

Smith—I woke up last night with a horrible suspicion that my new gold watch was gone. So strong was the impression that I got up to look. Brown—Well, was it gone? Smith—No, but it was going.

A wise philosopher gives us this advice: "Tell the truth to at least three men—your doctor, your lawyer and your banker."

Slightly Colder with Snow

When you see that kind of a weather forecast you know that rheumatism weather is at hand. Get ready for it now by getting a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment. Finest thing made for rheumatism, chilblains, frostbite, sore and stiff Joints and muscles, all aches and pains. 25c 50c and $1.00 a bottle. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Diplomatic Reticence.

The social reformer was paying a visit to the convicts in the penitentiary and asking them various questions.

"And what are you doing here, my friend?" he said to a good looking man in the shoeshop.

"Making shoes," was the reply that discouraged any further inquisition in that direction.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has become famous for its cures of coughs, colds, croup and influenza. Try it when in need. It contains no harmful substance and always gives prompt relief. Sold by all dealers

$100 Reward

Would gladly be paid for a cure by many people who are crippled with rheumatism, yet if they only knew it, they can be cured by a few bottles of Ballard's Snow Liniment, and the price is only 25c, 50c and $1.00 a bottle. Sold by L. S. Simmons. ALES

NOISE AND WORK.

Connecticut Town's Crusade Against Unnecessary Ringing of Bells.

One of the enterprising manufacturing towns of Connecticut has started a crusade against the excessive ringing of mill bells and the prolonged blowing of steam whistles, says the Philadelphia Ledger. The manufacturing establishments are the life of the place, and if the signals of prosperity are welcome anywhere in the world they would be cherished in all their aggressiveness, one might suppose, in a bustling and hustling Connecticut town. The citizens of this particular place draw the line at 108 strokes of a big factory bell at 5:30 in the morning, when most of the inhabitants are enjoying the profound sleep which settles upon one about the dawn of day. It is suggested by one of the disgruntled that the bell ringing practice is a survival of the period when there were few clocks and no dollar watches.

It is rank heresy to declaim against the bustle of trade, even if it take the form of unnecessary racket, in a community which finds it difficult to differentiate between mere noise and progress. But some of the citizens of Rockville, Conn., possessing the courage of conviction, are agitating the question whether it is not possible to turn out as much work from the factories with a little less tumult in the bell towers and terrific blasts of the big whistles.

There was a time when the people could not be assembled without the aid of a bell. Within recollection every schoolhouse was provided with one. The childish mind is peculiarly oblivious to punctuality in attendance at school, yet several hundred thousand public school pupils in Philadelphia manage to arrive in time for the first morning lesson without the aid of any signal save the home clock. In the majority of the Pennsylvania counties the courthouse is provided with a bell. Litigation apparently could not be conducted without it, but in New York and Philadelphia the judges are able to occupy the bench, the lawyers, the suitors, the witnesses and the jurymen their places, more or less promptly without the assistance of the bell in the steeple. The fact is a great deal of very important assembling is accomplished without such aid. The theory that nothing is doing when there is no noise is exploded. In the early days of railroading the time table was not sufficient to waken the village, and it was thought essential that the depot as well as the locomotive should have a bell to inform the traveler that it was train time.

TELEPHONE AS A POLICEMAN

Its Advantage Shown In a Massachusetts Rural Community.

The value of the telephone to rural communities was emphasized in Chester, Mass., where it was employed to good purpose in posting subscribers to be on the watch for Charles Tiedman, a wife murderer, says the Springfield (Mass.) Union. Most of the farmhouses in that vicinity are connected by telephone, and it was an easy matter for the authorities to notify the inhabitants for miles around of the crime. Consequently the fugitive found no road to safety. It was like throwing a cordon of police around him. He knew he was being pursued and quickly discovered he was being headed off. From the vantage point of some tall tree he could see the trap into which he was being forced. To the right, to the left, ahead of him and behind him he could catch glimpses of armed farmers. Had he taken to the dense woods and remained quiet he might have postponed his capture for some days, but it is the instinct of the murderer to flee. He somehow feels that he is safer while being constantly on the move.

But the telephone—what a convenience and comfort it is in these sparsely populated towns and what an efficient agent it is in such cases as this: It makes every farmer a policeman. And is there a better policeman than a determined farmer with a gun? The chances are he can shoot straight, for the woodchucks and crows keep him in practice. We in the city know something of the telephone as a convenience; but, convenient as it is, we sometimes think of it as more of a nuisance than a comfort, but when one lives on a farm where the nearest neighbor may be perhaps a mile or more away it is mighty comforting to hear some other human voice even over a wire.

It takes away from the loneliness and gives a sense of security. With the telephone and rural free delivery the farmer is no longer out of touch with the rest of the world. He can get his newspaper every day; he can talk to the folks in town.

THE RESTLESS MORO.

He Is Never Happy Unless on a Marauding Expedition.

The Moro is brave to fearlessness, a born pirate and essentially a first class fighting man. He is never happy unless on a marauding expedition and stealing from his neighbors, friends and foes alike. The chief who is the most successful thief is the most respected and the most powerful among chiefs.

The Moro trades with his neighbors on market days in the various coins of the realm and foreign moneys. At other times he is a free ocean rover, extending his trading voyages as far north as the islands of Negros and Panay, south to the Celebes and Borneo and westerly to the Palawan. He is the most successful of smugglers, and a little act of piracy when chance offers goes without mention. The Moro is the most perfect of aquatic beings, the most skillful small boat sailor or large "prau" navigator extant. He can no more drown than can a fish. There is no record of a drowned Moro. He can dive to the bottom of the sea at depths of from twenty-five to a hundred feet for the valuable mother-of-pearl shell, and his life is largely lived at sea from infancy. Along the coast many of the Moro villages are built over the water.—Colonel Owen J. Sweet, U. S. A., in Harper's Weekly.

There Are Many.

Gunner—There goes a man who has taken crowds off their feet.

Guyer—Ah! A great orator, I presume.

Gunner—No; a reckless motorman.—Chicago News.

A Utility Artist.

"Has Doem any artistic ability?"

"Has he! You ought to see the salaries he draws making a bluff at work."—Baltimore American.

Your cough annoys you. Keep on hacking and tearing the delicate membranes of your throat if you want to be annoyed. But if you want relief, want to be cured, take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Sold by all druggists.

Prussian Dairymaids.

In the great Elbing dairies in west Prussia the dairy maids are not permitted to wear corsets. The different grades of proficiency are indicated by the caps worn. The milkmaids wear white caps, the pupils white also, with the addition, however, of black velvet bands, and the dairy teachers caps with silver lace. Many daughters of the landed nobility take a course in this work, but all alike wear the uniform prescribed. This is not a skirt, but waist and knickerbockers. It is found that this is the most cleanly and comfortable and serviceable in an occupation subject to various accidents.

The pleasant purgative effect experienced by all who use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and the healthy condition of the body and mind which they create, makes one feel joyful. Sold by all druggists.
